Reading Comprehension (110marks):

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

A dabbawala is a person in Mumbai, whose job is carrying and delivering freshly made food from home in lunch boxes to office workers. They are officially known as MTBSA (Mumbai Tiffin Box Suppliers Association), but most people refer to them as the dabbawalas. The dabbawalas appeared when India was under the British rule. Since many British people who came to India did not like all types of local food, a service was started to bring lunch to their head offices straight from their homes.

Today, businessmen in modern Mumbai use this service and have become the main customers of the dabbawalas. The dabbawalas of Mumbai have an astonishing service record. On every working day, they deliver more than 130,000 lunch boxes- all while going through traffic and crowds in the world's third most populated city. By delivering to each employee his tiffin or lunch box, the dabbawalas serve about 200,000 people per day. They charge between 150 to 300 rupees per each lunch box per month, depending on the location and collection time. The dabbawalas are widely known for their error-free services. Isn't this remarkable!

The dabbawalas are an incredible team. They have professional management. They are always on time, even through the rainiest days on the planet. Their creativity and cleverness have kept them alive. When telephone services were not available for everyone in India, the dabbawalas encouraged mothers to use their system to communicate with their sons by placing little notes inside their lunch boxes. The sons enjoyed the notes as much as the food. The dabbawalas were able to "think outside the box" and widen their abilities despite their simple structure as they mainly depended on using bicycles for transportation. They have also used technology. On March 25, 2006, the dabbawalas went online with www.mydabbawala.com. The dabbawalas have become icons of hard work and dedication. In fact, the 5,000 workers including a number of women are so well-known that King Charles III (Prince Charles at that time) paid them a visit during his trip to India. Several academic institutions regularly invite the dabbawala's managers to benefit from their outstanding work experience.

Reading Comprehension (110marks):

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

Your genes are responsible for your appearance and your health. Half your genes are from your mother, the other half from your father. You are not identical to your mother or your father, but you probably look a bit like both of them. Or you may resemble one of your grandparents. But even if you are like other members of your family, you are unique. Your genes are different from everyone else's genes. The only people who have exactly the same genes are identical twins. They should look exactly the same.

Some of the features you inherit from your parents are hair, eye color, skin color and facial features like the size and shape of your nose. You probably have the same hair color as one of your parents, but this is not always true. Two dark-haired parents can have a blond or red-headed child. This happens when there was a blond or red-headed ancestor. Fifty percent of men with bald fathers will lose their hair. But the gene for baldness can come from the mother's family too -only boys should look at their mother's father. They may take after him.

The strongest, or dominant, gene in eye color is brown. If both parents have brown eyes, their children probably have brown eyes too. It's also common for two brown-eyed parents to have a blue-eyed child, but unusual for two blue-eyed parents to have a brown-eyed child. As well as eye color, you can inherit poor eyesight from your parents. So, if you're shortsighted, you're probably not the only person in your family who wears glasses.

There are many different skin colors: from black, dark brown, brown, light brown to white. Most families share the same skin color, but black parents can give birth to a lighter-skinned child if they have pale-skinned ancestors. Usually, a black and a white parent have dark-skinned children because black is a dominant gene. But twin sisters Hayleigh and Lauren are exceptions. One twin is black and the other is white. Hayleigh looks exactly like her black father and Lauren is the image of her white mother. This was only possible because their father had a white relative in his past.

Finally, if you are left-handed or if you have dimples in your cheeks or chin, you can thank your genes.

A- From a, b, and c choose the correct answer: (5X 10 = 50 Marks)

1- What is the best title for the passage?

- a- Human Beings
- b- Features of Twins
- c- A Family Tradition

- a- boys
- b- men
- c- bald fathers
- d- mother’s family

3- The underlined word “take after” in the 2nd paragraph means:

- a- assist
- b- execute
- c- repudiate
- d- resemble

4- From the 1st paragraph we learn that genes:

- a- are identical in everybody.
- b- specify who your parents are.
- c- determine what you look like.
- d- come mainly from your grandparents' side.

5- According to the 2nd paragraph, ONE of the following statements is TRUE:

- a- Seventy percent of men with bald fathers go bald.
- b- Both men and women may look at their mother’s father
- c- Men always lose their hair because of their father’s genes.
- d- Men sometimes inherit baldness from their mother’s side.

B- With reference to the passage, answer the following questions: (4 X 15 = 60 marks)

READING COMPREHENSION (110 Marks)

- Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

In numerous studies, Canada ranks among the best places to live in. In both 2018 and 2019, it was ranked third best country in the world by US News & World Report. This is due to its access to education, long life expectancy, and low crime and violence rates. It is no wonder that more and more international students are choosing to study in Canada.

It has a population of about 36.7 million. Most Canadians are of European origin from early French and British migrants. The second half of the 20th century saw a large increase in the number of immigrants from Asia, the Caribbean, and Africa. There are currently more than 260 different ethnic origins reported across Canada. It is also home to a large aboriginal population who are the Inuit and the Métis. These two tribes are the first inhabitants of Canada.

Canada is a very large country that is extremely varied in its people, places, landscape, and climate. The Canadian way of life varies from one individual to another. Canadians do share important values such as pride, a belief in equality and diversity, and respect for all individuals. They are very compassionate and sympathetic. It is these values that make Canada known as a friendly, peace-loving, and secure place to live in.

Canada is located in the northern half of the North American continent and is the second-largest country in the world. Despite its large size, the majority of the population lives within a few hundred kilometers of the southern border. It has over two million lakes and vast mountain ranges. The most important river in Canada is the St. Lawrence River, which is 3,058 km long and provides a seaway for ships from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic Ocean.

There are two official languages in Canada: English and French. English is the mother tongue of about 59% of Canadians, and French is the language of about 23%. Eighteen percent of Canadians either have more than one language or a language that is not English or French. The Canadian law makes English and French the official languages of Canada. Federal institutions reflect the equality of their two official languages by offering bilingual services.

VI- Reading Comprehension: (110 Marks)

Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow:

It is the start of another day in your smart office. It is early morning, and you are on the way to work. Your office building is waking up, adjusting the lights and temperature. As you arrive, a sensor recognises you and opens the door. As you reach your desk, your virtual assistant tells you that your first meeting is in 30 minutes. It has already prepared the conference room and informed participants that you have arrived. As you sit down, your smart chair adjusts the temperature around you to 22 degrees Celsius—your preferred temperature. You ask your virtual assistant to print a 3D-model of your project to show in the meeting.

As technology advances, smart offices are becoming more common. High-tech workplaces promise to make our working lives more efficient and comfortable. They may also help us save money and energy. Around 40 percent of electricity worldwide is used in commercial buildings—mostly for lighting and temperature control. The smart office will help reduce this consumption. Sensors will recognise where people are; the office will then adapt the local environment, turning off electricity when it is not needed.

Smart technology will also help increase office productivity. Temperature, for example, can affect employee performance. The ideal temperature for one person is often not ideal for another. So, in an office with many people, what can be done? One solution is smart chairs. Each chair has both mini fans and heating devices. The person in the chair can change the temperature to suit them, creating a micro-climate.

Are there any downsides to the smart office? Some people worry about being monitored by the new technology. In 2016, the British newspaper the Daily Telegraph placed sensors under the desks of its main office. The sensors measured how much each workspace was being used. The company hoped this could make the office more energy-efficient. However, some employees felt they were being watched, and the sensors were removed within a day. So the smart office may be the workplace of the future—but perhaps not everyone will be happy about that.

Read the following passage, then do as required:

Many people over the age of 65 develop dementia. It is a condition which results in memory loss and the gradual worsening of mental abilities. Researchers are working to find ways to prevent or reverse memory loss. Currently, however, there is no cure—only treatments that reduce the symptoms for a limited time.

While we wait for a cure, there are a few things we can do to reduce the risk of developing dementia. Experts recommend eating a healthy diet. They also call for maintaining a healthy weight. Moreover, they recommend exercising our brains by reading, doing puzzles, and being socially active. Last but certainly not least, we should do regular physical exercises. Recent research has shown that physical exercise helps the brain to create new brain cells.
