Hi Salim,

How are you? I am on holiday with my mum, dad and brother in Barcelona, in Spain. We've been here for a few days now and we're having a fantastic time!

We flew from Kuwait to Barcelona airport. The plane was crowded and the food wasn't great, but they showed some good films on the journey. I saw Ice Age 4. Have you seen it? We arrived in Spain at about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The next day we got up early and explored the city. We walked up and down La Rambla, which is a really busy street here. We had breakfast first then we did some shopping. I bought some fascinating postcards and my brother bought some trainers because his old ones were too small and they hurt his feet. My mum bought us some sweets and some chocolates because we were hungry again! Yesterday, we went to Park Guell. This park was designed by a famous Spanish architect called Guadi. It's full of colourful sculptures of animals and shapes. It's a really interesting place to walk around. My favourite sculpture was the lizard at the entrance. It's bright blue and yellow and has water flowing out of its mouth. It's really cool!

We've also been to Sagrada Familia which is a fantastic building in Barcelona. Guadi designed this too. He worked on it for 40 years but he died before it was finished. The views are fantastic there. We're going to Barcelona zoo at the weekend. I'm really looking forward to it.

Bye for now, Ali

Read the following passage carefully, and then answer the questions below:

According to the American Camp Association (ACA), 11 million children and adults joined camps in 2010.The ACA manager says that if the number of summer campers rises one million every year, they will need more workers to work in camps. This number shows the numerous benefits of camps.

As technology continues to play a big role in the education of today's youth, summer camps are ideal places for kids to leave the phones and computers behind and get active. Many camps have got many types of activities during the day that help children to exercise. In camps, kids may find new sports and activities that suit their interests. But sometimes it might be risky and dangerous, in some places, for kids to go camping when there are heavy rains or snowstorms.

Outside the classrooms, summer camps are a great way for young people to socialize and meet new friends. Local camps are usually made up of young people from schools in the nearby area. This gives your teen a chance to meet new students that come from different schools. As teens grow to adulthood, camps can help them develop social skills in a good environment. Encouraging your kids to try a summer camp will put them in everyday social situations that might prepare them for college and future life.

In recent years, the world's press has been full of reports of wild animals coming into cities in big numbers. In some cities, you can see birds, insects, cats, and mice. But sometimes it is dangerous when big animals come into cities to find food. In Cape Town in South Africa monkeys come into the city when they are hungry. They go into gardens and eat fruit and vegetables. They even go into houses and take food from cupboards and fridges! Monkeys are wild animals and they can make people scared. But the city can be dangerous for monkeys too. Sometimes, cars and buses kill monkeys in accidents. Although humans like a lot of sugar in their food, it is very bad for the monkeys. Now, there is a group of people called "Monkey Monitors" working in Cape Town. Their job is to find monkeys in the city and return them to the countryside.

In Moscow in Russia, there are 35,000 dogs. They live in parks, old houses, markets, and train stations. Some dogs have even learnt to use the city's metro system to get from place to another! Many people in Moscow like to help dogs. They give them food and make small houses for them. This helps dogs specially when there is a lot of snow and ice. Other people do not like dogs at all and they want the police to stop them entering the city.

Read the following passage carefully, and then answer the questions below:

Some trees give us fruit to eat, like apple trees and orange trees. Other trees provide wood for furniture and houses. A few trees can grow without much water. But only one kind of trees can do all three things. There are 2,500 different kinds of palm trees, and the most useful kinds are date palms. Good date palms provide 400 kilos of dates every year for 70 years. Not only dates are delicious and healthy but can be kept longer than any other fruit. Apples and oranges are not good after a week in hot weather, but dates are good for many weeks.

Every part of a palm tree is useful. The leaves and branches provide cool shade. They are important for people and animals in hot countries. In cold weather, the dry leaves and branches can be used to make fire to keep people warm. People make baskets and other things from the leaves. They can build houses from the branches and long thick trunks.

Palm trees can grow in very hot and dry countries because they don't need much water. They need water only once every two weeks. They don't need good soil either. They can grow in sandy soil, and they help to stop the sand moving. Palm trees are beautiful too. People in deserts and hot dry countries have loved palm trees for hundred years.
