This is a true story. It happened a few years ago in a small town. All the families in the town watched a lot of TV, but many people were not happy about this. Some people said, "TV is bad for us. It makes us lazy and unhealthy." Others said, "TV is bad for children because there is too much fighting on TV." Many people said, "People don't talk when the TV is on, and that's bad for families." One person said, "Let's stop watching TV- just for one month." A lot of people liked that idea. So, 40 families put their TVs in a cupboard and did not watch TV for one month.

Those four weeks with no TV were very different. Children played together more than before. Families talked together more and did interesting things together. One father said, "When we had TV, we did not talk much, but now we enjoy talking and laughing together. That's more interesting and more amusing than TV." A boy said, "I've started new hobbies, and I've had a lot of fun with my brother and parents." Some fat children lost a few kilos because they spent less time sitting down.

So, what happened at the end of the month? Did the 40 families throw away their TVs away or did they put the TVs back in their living rooms? The answer is surprising! Not one family threw out their TV! Some people watched less than before, but none of them stopped. They all loved that box in the living room too much!
