Simple past & past continuous

We often use the past continuous and the past simple tense together. When this happens, the past continuous describes a longer, action or situation.

Example: - When I woke up this morning, it was raining and my father was singing in the kitchen.

Often, the 'action' described by the past simple tense interrupts the 'situation' described by the past continuous tense.

Examples: - I broke my leg while I was skiing.

- I was playing a computer game when the doorbell rang.

Past Simple	Past Continuous
Form: irregular verbs: see 2nd column of	$\underline{\underline{Form}}$ : $\Longrightarrow$ was / were + ing

Read the following passage, then do as required:

Cinnamon is a popular spice, found in all sorts of recipes and baked goods. Cinnamon has numerous health benefits, and is particularly effective at lowering blood sugar levels. Cinnamon can benefit health and promote healthy blood regulation. It has potent antioxidant activity, helps fight inflammation and has been shown to lower cholesterol and triglycerides in the blood. Cinnamon can lower blood sugar by several mechanisms, including by slowing the breakdown of carbohydrates in the digestive tract and improving insulin sensitivity. Studies have shown that cinnamon can lower fasting blood sugars by 10-29% in diabetic patients, which is a significant amount.

End or finish?

Note: We use the verbs end and finish in similar ways, to mean 'come to a stop' We use finish to say that we complete something that we are doing. It emphasises that the process stops within a specific period of time. We use end to say that stopping something is significant, and has a clear conclusion or shape

Examples:

- 1. I think that his contract ends this month.
- 2. What time does the film finish?
- 3. If we had the right tools, we could finish the job by Friday this week.
- 4. The course of the river ended in a delightful harbour with small sailing boats everywhere.

Begin or start?

Note: We can use the verbs begin and start to mean the same thing but begin is more formal than start. Start is used to talk about creating a new business. We use start to talk about machines.

Examples:

- 1. When did you begin learning English?
- 2. Press this button to start the printer.

Not: ... to begin the printer.

3. She started a new restaurant and it's been going really well.

Read the following passage, then do as required:

Building healthy friendships is an important part of your social life. Friends can have a major influence on how you think, feel, and behave. You should choose your friend precisely. There are some qualities that you should consider before choosing your friends. It is better to choose friends with similar values. They should have common goals with you. Your friends should offer to support you during any difficult emotional times and be there for you in a real, sincere way. They may also offer guidance and advice when you need it. Choose friends that share the same interests.

Summary Making (3)

Read the following passage, then do as required:

If only each and every one of us would plant a tree, we would have millions and millions of trees in the world. Think of the benefits that that would bring. Instead of barren land or concrete jungles, we would have lush green forests and fresh air. Indeed, one of the many benefits of trees is that they provide us with oxygen through the process of photosynthesis. Trees provide us with food and shelter. In many parts of the world, people are still dependent on trees to build homes. Trees are useful not only to man, but they also provide shelter and food to a wide variety of animals, big and small alike. On a hot day, trees offer shade.

Reading Comprehension

Read the following passage, then answer the questions below:

Christopher Columbus was the first to take cacao beans from the New World to Europe in around 1502. But the history of chocolate goes back at least 4,000 years! The Spanish explorer Hernando Cortez went to America in 1519. He visited the Mexican emperor Montezuma. He saw that Montezuma drank cacao mixed with vanilla and spices. Cortez took some cacao home as a gift to the Spanish king Charles. In Spain, people began to drink Cortez's chocolate in a drink with chili peppers. However, the natural taste of cacao was too bitter for most people. To sweeten the drink, Europeans added sugar to the cacao drink. As a sweet drink, it became more popular. By the 17th century, rich people in Europe were drinking it. Later, people started using chocolate in pastries, like pies and cakes.

In 1828, Dutch chocolate makers started using a new process for removing the fat from cacao beans. The Dutch chocolate maker Conrad J. Van made a machine that pressed the fat from the bean. The resulting powder mixed better with water. Now, some call Van's chocolate "Dutch chocolate". It was easy to mix Dutch chocolate powder with sugar. So other chocolate makers started trying new recipes that used powdered chocolate. In the 19th century, the Swiss started making milk chocolate by mixing milk powder with sweetened chocolate. Milk chocolate has not changed much since then.

Today, Brazil owns almost half of the world's chocolate. The United States imports most of the chocolate in the world, but the Swiss eat the most chocolate in the world. The most chocolate eaten today is sweet milk chocolate. People also eat white chocolate and dark chocolate. Cocoa and dark chocolate are believed to help prevent heart attacks, or help keep them from happening. They are supposed to be good for the circulatory system. They help the body's cell resist damage caused by pollution. On the other hand, the high fat content of chocolate can cause weight gain which is not good for people's health. Some researches show that chocolate could be good for the brain.

Summary Making (5)

Read the following passage, then do as required:

Thousands of years ago, there was no writing system at all. News and information were passed on from one person to another by word of mouth. Cave man invented the first written language by drawing pictures on cave walls to tell their friends about their hunts. The writing tools used in ancient times complimented with the material people wrote on. In the Middle East, hollow reeds were used to write on wet clay while in Egypt, reeds containing ink were used to write on animal skins or papaya stems. Quill pens which require constant ink dipping were used before the invention of fountain pens. Discovering that the nibs of fountain pens break easily, 'ballpoint' pens were invented to replace them.

Summary making (6)

Read the following passage, then do as required:

We are bombarded by many advertisements every day. There are two types of advertisements. Informative advertisements provide consumers information about the products or services. They are especially useful when we are purchasing new products. The second kind is the persuasive ones which provide us with products information and also persuade us to buy them by claiming the superiority of their products. Advertisements also benefit readers of newspapers and magazines by helping to subsidize the prices. One disadvantage of advertisements is that they sometimes aim to sell only and cover up the flaws of the advertised products. Advertising also raises the production cost which in turn increases the prices of the products too.

In FOUR sentences, summarise and paraphrase the previous passage in answer to the following question:

What are the advantages and disadvantages of advertisements?

Reading Comprehension (80Ms.)

Read the following text and then answer the questions below;

Malnutrition is a dietary condition caused by a deficiency or excess of one or more essential nutrients in the diet. Malnutrition is characterized by a wide array of health problems. They include extreme weight loss, stunted growth, weakened resistance to infection, and impairment of intellect. Severe cases of malnutrition can lead to death.

For one thing, deficiency diseases result from inadequate intake of the major nutrients. These deficiencies can result from eating foods that lack critical vitamins and minerals, from a lack of variety of foods, or from simply not having enough food. When the body is not given enough of any one of the essential nutrients over a period of time, it becomes weak and less able to fight infection. The brain may become sluggish and react slowly. The body taps its stored fat for energy, and muscle is broken down to use for energy. Eventually the body withers away, the heart ceases to pump properly, and death occurs.

Although malnutrition is more commonly associated with dietary deficiencies, it also can develop in cases where people have enough food to eat, but they choose foods low in essential nutrients. This is the more common form of malnutrition in most developed countries. When poor food choices are made, a person may be getting an adequate amount of calories each day, yet still be undernourished. For example, low intake of calcium is directly related to poor quality bones and increased fracture risk, especially in the elderly.

A diet of excesses may also lead to other nutritional problems. Obesity is the condition of having too much body fat. It has been linked to life-threatening diseases including diabetes, heart problems, and some forms of cancer. Eating too many salty foods may contribute to high blood pressure, an often-undiagnosed condition that causes the heart to work too hard and puts strain on the arteries.

High blood pressure can lead to strokes, heart attacks, and kidney failure. A diet high in cholesterol and fat, particularly saturated fat, is the primary cause of atherosclerosis, which results when fat and cholesterol deposits build up in the arteries, causing a reduction in blood flow.
