Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions below:

It is the start of another day in your smart office. It is early morning, and you are on the way to work. Your office building is waking up, adjusting the lights and temperature. As you arrive, a sensor recognizes you and opens the door. As you reach your desk, your virtual assistant tells you that your first meeting is in 30 minutes. It has already prepared the conference room and informed participants that you have arrived. As you sit down, your smart chair adjusts the temperature around you to 22 degrees Celsius- your preferred temperature. You ask your virtual assistant to print a 3D model of your project to show in the meeting.

As technology advances, smart offices are becoming more common. High-tech workplaces promise to make our working lives more efficient and comfortable. They may also help us save money and energy. Around 40 percent of electricity worldwide is used in commercial buildings-mostly for lighting and temperature control. The smart office will help reduce this consumption. Sensors will recognize where people are; the office will then adapt to the local environment, turning off electricity when it is not needed.

Smart technology will also help increase office productivity. Temperature, for example, can affect employee performance. The ideal temperature for one person is often not ideal for another. So, in an office with many people, what can be done? One solution is smart chairs. Each chair has both mini fans and heating devices. The person in the chair can change the temperature to suit them, creating a micro-climate.

Are there any downsides to the smart office? Some people worry about being monitored by the new technology. In 2016, the British newspaper, The Daily Telegraph, placed sensors under the desks of its main office. The sensors measured how much each workspace was being used. The company hoped this could make the office more energy efficient. However, some employees felt they were being watched, and the sensors were removed within a day. So, the smart office may be the workplace of the future-but perhaps not everyone will be happy about that.

A-) From a, b, c and d, choose the correct answer:

- b. possibilities
- c. differences
- d. disadvantages

3. The underlined word "it" in the 2nd paragraph refers to:

- a. office
- b. electricity
- c. environment
- d. consumption

4. According to the 3rd paragraph, smart technology can help employees to:

- a. vary working hours.
- b. change seat temperature.
- c. control global environment.
- d. decrease office productivity.

5. A virtual assistant can do all the following EXCEPT:

- a. wake you up.
- b. get a conference room ready for a meeting.

A-) Read the following passage, then do as required:

Many people over the age of 65 develop dementia. It is a condition that results in memory loss and the gradual worsening of mental abilities. Researchers are working to find ways to prevent or reverse memory loss. Currently, however, there are no cure-only treatments that reduce the symptoms for a limited time.

While we wait for a cure, there are a few things we can do to reduce the risk of developing dementia. Experts recommend eating a healthy diet. They also call for maintaining a healthy weight. Moreover, they recommend exercising our brains by reading, doing puzzles, and being socially active. Last but certainly not least, we should do regular physical exercise. Recent research has shown that physical exercise helps the brain to create new brain cells.

In a paragraph of FOUR sentences ONLY, summarise and paraphrase the previous passage in answer to the following question:

What can people do to avoid the risk of dementia?

Model Answer

To lower the chances of dementia, experts suggest a healthy lifestyle. They also ask people to reduce their weight. In addition, people need to do reading, solve puzzles, and be social as an exercise for their brains. Lastly, people must do some physical activity regularly to make the brain build new cells.

B-) Read the following passage, then do as required:

Reading can change the way that you understand the world. It can give you a broader perspective on things. You can learn about cultures different from your own. Reading is also good for your state of mind. It has a calming effect. Moreover, it can lower your stress levels and help you relax. You can escape from your troubles for a moment when you read, and it's a positive escape. The benefits of reading are far greater than those of acting like a doofus. So, do yourself a favor: the next time you get a reading assignment, take as much as you can from it. Squeeze it for every drop of knowledge that it contains. Then move to the next one.

In a paragraph of FOUR sentences ONLY, summarise and paraphrase the previous passage in answer to the following question:

"What are the benefits of reading?"

Model Answer

Reading can change how you see the world and give you a bigger view. It's good for your mind. Also, it makes you feel calm and less stressed. When you read, you can take a break from your problems positively.

C-) Read the following passage, then do as required:

We all wish there was more time in the day; we wonder where all those hours went. If you're like most other people in the world, then time management might be an issue. You can efficiently manage your time if you are well organized. Without organization, it's difficult to see what needs to be accomplished in the day. You must make sure you're clear about your goals and objectives in your life. Try to manage your workload and hit deadlines by prioritizing your time, making a list of all your tasks, and identifying urgent vs. important. When you start a task, finish it at once because delaying work is one of the hardest parts of time management.

In a paragraph of FOUR sentences ONLY, summarise and paraphrase the previous passage in answer to the following question:

"How can you manage your time effectively?"

Model Answer

To manage your time well, you need to stay organized. Also, you must know your goals. In addition, you must control the load of work by making a list and putting important things first. Lastly, you must finish tasks without delay.
