Read the following passage and then answer the questions below:

Would you like to become a "teleworker"? Teleworkers are people who work for companies, but not in companies. This means that they do company work at home, usually on computers. Teleworkers communicate with their bosses by mobile phones or e-mails. They usually send information from their own computers to the office computers by the internet.

"Teleworking" is becoming more and more popular in Britain, USA and other countries all over the world. There are many reasons for this development. The biggest advantage for companies is that teleworking lowers the companies' spending of money. Having fewer workers at work means having less office space. Also, computers are now quicker and easier to use, and the prices keep going down. For a company, it is cheaper to train people on computer skills and give them a personal computer to use at home.

However, before you apply for a job as a teleworker, you should ask yourself if it is really the best thing for you. Bill Smith, who works for a big company, hasn't enjoyed his last three months at home. He often falls asleep at the computer because he doesn't have anybody to talk to at home. He decides to leave his job as a teleworker and start a new job in a company where there are five other people in one small office.

Read the following passage and then answer the questions below:

Although he invented the game of basketball at Massachusetts, USA, Dr. Naismith was a Canadian. Working as a physical education teacher at Springfield College, Dr. Naismith noticed a lack of interest in exercise among students during the wintertime. The New England winters were fierce, and the students refused participating in outdoor activities. Naismith determined that a fast-moving game that could be played indoors would satisfy them after the baseball and football seasons had ended.

In December of 1891, Dr. Naismith hung two old peach baskets at either end of the gymnasium at the school and he used a soccer ball and nine players on each side to organise the first basketball game. The early rules allowed three points for each basket and made running with the ball a foul. Every time a goal was made, someone had to climb a ladder to get the ball back.

Nevertheless, the game became popular. In less than a year, basketball was being played in both the United States and Canada. Five years later, a championship was held in New York City, which was won by the Brooklyn Central team. The teams had already been reduced to seven players, and five became standard in the 1897 season. When basketball was introduced in the 1904 Olympic Games in St. Louis, it quickly spread throughout the world. In 1906, a metal circle was used for the first time to replace the basket, but the name basketball has remained.

4- There are in a standard basketball game nowadays.

- a. nine players b. seven players c. three players d. five players

- a. three points were scored for every basket.
b. nine players were on a team at the beginning.
c. the ball had to be brought back from the basket after each score.
d. running with the ball was not a foul.

6- From the passage, we understand that the original baskets:

- a. were not placed very high b. are made of metal
c. did not have a hole in the bottom d. were hung on the same side

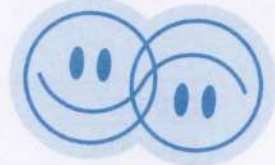

B Answer the following questions:

7- Where did Naismith hang the two peach baskets?

Reading Comprehension

Read the passage, then answer the questions below:

"Rise and shine" - we say this only to promote the benefits of getting up early in the morning. A person who gets up early would have finished much of their work before others even got out of bed. In the early morning, the mind is fresh, so the job is well done. Doing exercise in the mornings' fresh air gives the body the energy "it" needs through the day.

The early riser does not have to hurry or achieve what he is after so quickly or under stress. As work is completed on time, he also finds free time to relax in the evenings. This tells us that the benefits are a healthy body and mind, doing a good job, learning well and enjoying one's time. Therefore, everyone must understand that "Early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise."

Read the following passage and then answer the questions below:

Hundreds of years ago, it was possible to use natural material for making our clothes. Both plants and animals supply us with these materials such as wool, cotton, silk, leather and fur. Wool was used for making clothes because it was the most common material for making clothes in Europe.

Cotton has been used for three thousand years to make clothes especially in warm countries. The cloth made from cotton plant is very soft, cool and comfortable. In the past, cotton clothes were so expensive that only rich people could buy them.

In the twentieth century, scientists could make artificial materials for making clothes. Nylon and polyester are well-known examples. These are much better than natural ones in many ways. For example, they are cheaper and easier to wash. In addition, they last longer and can be mixed with cotton and wool to produce a cloth that looks natural and easy to take care of.

Nowadays, clothes are made in modern factories. These factories make many styles for all people. Some factories make special clothes, like sports clothes or ones for firemen. Now, all types of clothes are available at the markets.

At age 23, Fulton decided to move to England and while living there, he invented many different kinds of machines. He was very interested in how canal systems worked. Canals are deep paths of water for boats to travel through from one body of water to another. They usually are man-made.

Fulton eventually moved to France and worked on canal systems. There he used his talents for art and invention to design a submarine, which is a boat that can go underwater. Then he built a steamboat, a large boat that is powered by heating water to make steam which makes the paddlewheels move.

When Fulton moved back to the U.S., he took his steamboat invention and established the first steamboat service in the world on the Hudson River in New York. People paid money to travel by steamboat.

Reading Comprehension Quiz – Model (2)

Read the following letter, then answer the questions below:

Dear Sir/Madam,

I bought a washing machine (Sodina ZB55-608) from your store two months ago. When I used it for the first time, it worked properly and the clothes came out clean and fresh. When I used the machine the second time, it didn't heat the water and there was a problem with the rinse cycle. A technician from your factory tried to fix the washing machine, but he failed. So, you changed it for a new one.

This one entangles the clothes so seriously that when it automatically begins to spin the water out, the machine would often shake madly and stop by itself. In the instruction booklet you have not mentioned this defect, nor have you told the user how to solve the problem.

Please, change it to a new one that does not entangle the clothes. I hope it won't take a long time to resolve the matter.

Yours faithfully,

Nancy Baker

Read the following passage and then answer the questions below:

What do the astronauts on the Space Shuttle do with their free time? Sure, technically they're on the job 24/7 a week, but when they have free time, they like to do the same things they do on earth. For example, astronauts spend about two hours every day exercising. This is really important to make sure that their body keeps working. Remember, on earth, when we are awake, we move against the force of gravity, and our muscles and bones have to support our bodies. In space, there is no gravity, so the body doesn't do any of this supporting work. This means that the body can become weak.

Astronauts use treadmills to exercise. A treadmill is a machine for running in one place. A wide belt moves under the astronaut's feet, so it feels like he is moving forward while running, though he is actually staying in place. The only real difference between this treadmill in space and treadmills you may have seen on earth is that the astronaut has to be strapped onto the treadmill in space so that he doesn't float away.

As far as the rest of their free time, the astronauts bring some of their personal belongings into space. They can read books or listen to music. At the International Space Station, they can also watch movies on DVD, and once a week they can talk to their families. Many of the astronauts enjoy taking photographs from the Space Shuttle's windows.

A Choose the correct answer from a, b, c and d:

 - personal belongings
- The main difference between treadmill in space and on earth is :
 - treadmill in space is faster.
 - treadmill on earth has a belt.
 - treadmill in space has straps.
 - treadmill on earth moves forward.
- The astronauts are at their workplace 24/7 a week because:
 - they cannot go home.
 - they have to work day and night.
 - they like to stay with their friends.
 - they don't have enough time for exercising.
- The purpose of the writer in writing the passage is to:
 - explain how to use treadmills.
 - show us how to prepare meals in space.
 - inform us about how free time in space is spent.
 - persuade people to travel to space.

B Answer the following questions:

7. How do astronauts keep their bodies working?

Read the following passage and then answer the questions below:

Have you ever been outside in the middle of July and seen swarms of dragonflies? Dragonflies are large and strong. They have big, compound eyes, which means that each eye is made up of thousands of tiny eyes, allowing the dragonfly to see in all directions. They are easily recognizable because of their size, and because their large wings are always held out straight, both while in flight and while resting. Dragonflies hunt, catch and eat insects.

Dragonflies are harmless to humans; they neither bite nor sting. In fact, you could even say that they are helpful, since they eat the insects that tend to annoy us, like mosquitoes, and flies.

Dragonflies are found all over the world, almost near water. Dragonflies like warm weather. They need to warm up in the sun during the mornings before they take off, and they fly for most of the day. Dragonflies are some of the earliest flying creatures to inhabit our planet and belong to an ancient insect group called the Odonata. They can hover like helicopters, fly superfast (reaching speeds of over 30 miles per hour), and can even fly backwards. As insects, they have six legs, but their long, heavy bodies and long wings make walking awkward for them, and they are not very good at it, so they do almost everything mid-flight.

A Choose the correct answer from a, b, c and d :

- What is the best title of this passage?
a. Types of Insects b. The History of Dragons
c. Helping Insects d. Fast Flies
- The underlined word "harmless" in the 2nd paragraph means:
a. dangerous b. harmful c. annoying d. safe
- The underlined word "it" refers to:
a. flying b. walking c. hunting d. hovering
- Dragonflies like other insects have six:
a. wings b. eyes c. legs d. bodies
- According to the passage, which of the following statements is TRUE?
a. Odonata is a kind of helicopter. b. Dragonflies see better than humans.
c. Mosquitoes eat small insects. d. Dragonflies can fly forward only.
- What is the author's purpose in writing this text?
a. To show how dragons are dangerous.
b. To persuade us to have dragonflies at home.
c. To tell us some facts about dragonflies.
d. To inform us about some insects that annoy us.

B Answer the following questions:

7. Why are dragonflies bad at walking?

8. What are the compound eyes used for?

Abby Snodgrass, a 17-year-old teenager, was just doing some routine shopping at Walmart Mall when an 11-month-old child suddenly stopped breathing in the store. The mother was trying to save her baby, but it wasn't working.

Abby had learned some lifesaving techniques recently in health classes at her high school. When she heard there was an emergency in the electronics department, Abby immediately ran there. She started applying the lifesaving lessons that she learned on the baby.

"I put her on my arm and held her head in my hand and started pressing on her chest with two fingers. Then I turned her over onto her stomach, still in my arm, I started to press on the back, then turned her over again and pressed again on her chest," she recalled.

Abby said thoughts were going through her mind about the possibility that the lifesaving techniques would not work, but she pushed it out of her mind because she knew she had to keep going with the lifesaving techniques, for any chance of saving the baby's life.

It is hard to imagine how certain products were invented. It turns out many of society's most well-known inventions were simply mistakes made by scientists trying to invent. No one could ever imagine that the flavoured potato chips and the morning best preferred breakfast, corn flakes, were accidentally introduced to the world's kitchen.

Potato chips were first meant to be a plate of fried potato. It was invented by George Crum, a chef at the Carey Moon Lake House. How was it created? One day a customer sent back his plate of potatoes many times and kept asking for them to be more fried and thinner. Crum lost his temper, sliced the potatoes extremely thin and fried them until they were hard as a rock. To the chef's surprise, the customer loved them and wanted more!

Corn flakes were invented by the Kellogg brothers, John and Will. They were trying to make pots of boiled grain. How was it created? The brothers accidentally left a pot of grain on the stove for several days. The mixture turned bad but there was something that was dry and thick. Through experimentation they removed the bad part and created corn flakes. Wouldn't it be nice if you could invent something unintentionally?

Reading Comprehension Quiz – Model (2)

Read the following passage, then answer the questions below:

Throughout history, there have been many famous male inventors, but less is known about female inventors. Interestingly, women have played a vital role in invention as they have had the chance to study and work. In fact, a lot of household inventions that we use in our daily lives have been devised by women. Some examples include disposable diapers, paper bags, languages for programming computers, dish washers and windscreen wipers.

In the past, the scientific and technical education of women was limited compared to men. However, a dramatic rise in the number of women who are studying and working in science and technology has occurred in recent years. Therefore, it can be argued that a focus education is necessary.

Umbrellas have a long history that dates back thousands of years. Ancient civilisations like Egypt, Greece, and China used umbrella-like devices for sun protection. At that time, umbrellas were mainly used to give shade to noblemen and rulers. The word "umbrella" comes from the Latin word "umbra," meaning shade or shadow. Initially, using umbrellas was a sign of wealth, but they became more popular in the 18th century. Today, umbrellas are widely used worldwide, with a global market value of over $5 billion.

The Chinese were the first to waterproof their umbrellas for rain protection. The foldable umbrellas people use today was developed in the 16th century. Modern umbrellas are waterproof thanks to the Teflon that factories coat them in. A hat seller was going to the village market to sell his hats. He walked for a long time through the green forest and felt tired, so he decided to take a rest. He saw a tall tree. He sat under it and soon fell asleep. On the tree, many monkeys lived. They saw the man sleeping with a hat on his head. They all came down to see. They found a bag full of colourful hats next to him. Monkeys like to imitate what people do, so they took the hats and wore them on their heads just like the man. Then, they climbed up the high branches of the tree.

After some time, the hat seller woke up. He found his bag empty. All the hats were missing. He looked around, but he didn't see them. He was very sad. All of a sudden, he heard loud noises coming from above, so he looked up and for his surprise he saw ten monkeys in the tree wearing his hats.

The hat seller wanted to get his hats back, but the monkeys were too fast he couldn't catch them. An idea struck his mind. The goalkeeper is the only player who can kick the ball. Hockey can be a dangerous game.
